

Factional Security Executive – Case Study

BUILDING SECURITY MINDED ORGANIZATIONS

Background

Leaders at a quickly growing data analytics company had concerns about the state of their cybersecurity program. Though staff was clearly intelligent and capable, leadership wanted to move from a program that was reactive and ad hoc towards one that was comprehensive and structured.

Solution

Starting with interviews of key internal and external stake holders, North Wonders helped define the cybersecurity strategy and produced a roadmap to move the company forward. With the published roadmap, oversight was provided via regular communication helping to work through roadblocks and foster a culture of accountability and collaboration.

Outcome

The roadmap was executed on schedule, delivering the promised results both on time and on budget. North Wonders continues to function in the role of fractional security executive for this company leveraging its proven methodology for cyber program design and execution.

- Execute annual planning process to ensure cyber program aligns with business needs and then provide oversight of the agreed upon roadmap.
- As de facto executive, regularly interact with customers and vendors.
- Foster a culture of security via formal and informal interactions with leaders
